TO PATRONS OF ADAMS EXPRESS COMPANY.

The volume of traffic now being tendered to the express companies is substantially larger than the corresponding season a year ago, while the express car equipment has been materially lessened through the necessity of using baggage and express cars in troop-movement and the handling of other Government traffic.

The express terminals in the larger cities of the East have their limitations and many of these terminals are now handling their maximum business. In order to utilize terminals and cars to their utmost capacity it is requested that express patrons assist the companies by preparing their express shipments as early in the day as possible, thereby avoiding congestion in the final pick-up.

It is only by the closest co-operation between express shippers and the carriers, and mutual consideration of the difficulties confronting each other, that we can minimize the restraints which may have to be enforced upon the customary use of the usual channels of transportation.
